

BY TWO MILES

Vigilant Again Outshines the English Cup Challenger.

Proves Invincible on Every Leg of the Triangular Course.

NO DOUBT NOW OF THE AMERICAN BOAT'S SUPERIORITY.

The English Tars Got What They Wanted, a stiff breeze, and saw it blow their Opponent Out of Reach—Valkyrie Led Over the Line, but Was Quickly Overtaken—Incidents of the Race.

New York, Oct. 5.—At gray dawn this morning, Fort Wadsworth, the anchoring place of the British and Vigilant, presented the same animated scene as on Thursday and Saturday last at the same time of day. Two pretty racing crafts, surrounded by a big fleet of pleasure vessels, were preparing for another struggle for the America's cup.

At sunrise the sky was overcast and had a reddish appearance, which cheered up the drooping spirits of the British yachtsmen, for they recalled that "red at night is the sailor's delight," but "red in the morning is the sailor's warning."

They have been pinning for a breeze, a gale of wind, if possible, on board both yachts ever since they have met in battle array, and if the weather prophet is to be believed a gale may close up the day—too late, possibly to give the yachts the shaking up they both desire.

Last night the weather king issued the following bulletin:

"In New York City and neighborhood, fair weather will probably prevail with fresh, variable winds, mostly southerly, possibly followed by cyclonic weather and rain on the coast."

Another weather authority had it that a 10-mile an hour breeze was all we were to expect off Sandy Hook to-day, and it makes yachtsmen sad even to think of such being the case.

At 5 a. m. when the staff of yachting representatives got down to work at the special observation points at Rockaway Beach, Sandy Hook, on top of the tower on Navesink Highland and on board the special yacht, oaded with crates of carrier pigeons, the sky had cleared nicely and a ten-knot breeze was blowing. The excursion steamers were loading up with human freight, beer, ice, luncheons and enthusiasm, for, it is known, there is as much interest taken in the yacht race to-day as there was in the first meeting of the rival beauties. This may seem strange in view of the Britisher's defeat, but it is owing to the fact that while the public in general has classed the Valkyrie as being the public's favorite, the Vigilant has gone up in the public's estimation. The Vigilant can sail Lord Dunraven's cutter at any point of sailing, the expert yachting men of the three leading newspapers of this city failed to agree with the general public upon this matter.

AN EXPERT'S OPINION.

An example of this differing of opinion that the wind dropped and a failing wind was always more favorable to the boat astern. However this may have been the fact remains that in the point of sailing where centerboards have always won over the fixed keel the cutter was able to hold her.

THE PUBLIC NOT UNSEASAY.

This is why the public maintains its interests in the race and why everybody is longing for a good stiff breeze which will definitely decide the relative merits of the Valkyrie and Vigilant. Behind the verdict of the experts, however, looms up the fact that the Vigilant appears to be the fastest yacht of the two and that nobody hereabouts feels at all uneasy as to the result. The cup will stay here, is the popular verdict, and it will take a good deal of hard tacking on the part of the British challenger to upset that opinion.

At 6 o'clock the yachting procession commenced to head towards the lower bay. Fort Wadsworth, Fort Hamilton, the Navesink Highlands, Sandy Hook and other points of good view of the racing were already peopled with the usual crowd of enthusiasts. It is more than probable that 40,000 people will gather off the Hook to-day, as they did on Saturday, to witness the yacht's dock horns once more, put a goodly crowd in present to cheer both the victorious and the defeated yachts. Yachting is such a Designer Watson, Mr. Kerr, Lord Dunraven's yacht, and Mr. H. H. Hansen, while Mr. Oliver Iselin, Nat Herreshoff, Percy Lamont and Capt. Hansen could be seen on the Vigilant deck.

VALKYRIE'S MASCOT.

The Valkyrie appears to have a lady passenger to-day and the opinion is expressed that Lady Dunraven is on board, the British cutter. A long swell was rolling and seasickness was an accompaniment of the day's sport.

At 10:30 the fickle and all-important atmosphere was moving in currents of about sixteen miles per hour at Sandy Hook, and boats were racing on the front tack about Sandy Hook lightship.

The speed of the wind at 10:30 was a gale of about three miles per hour upon the upper deck, and at 10:30 o'clock the wind was eighteen miles per hour; weather clear.

VALKYRIE FIRST ACROSS.

Prompty at 11:25 o'clock the preparatory gun boomed from the flagship way. Both yachts began maneuvering for position to the northward of the boat. Both headed for it, and when it was reached, Capt. Cranfield gave the word to go ahead. The boat started across at 11:25, Vigilant following close up about five seconds after. Two minutes later the boat had passed the Valkyrie, and was closing up to the Valkyrie, but they are called "Yankees" because the crew are called Capt. Cranfield has charge aboard Valkyrie.

UN-AMERICAN ME. ASTOR.

The Only London Editor to Disparage the Vigilant's Victory.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The newspaper generally of London accept the defeat of the Valkyrie in the race of Saturday in a sportsmanlike manner. If there is any exception it is Mr. Astor's Wall Mail Gazette, which says that the wind was extremely tricky and that the Vigilant had an enormous advantage in that its men knew the ground and were familiar with the tides. The paper's New York correspondent says of Valkyrie: "Her speed is greatly inferior to that of the Valkyrie and adds that 'the Yankee crew did not set the Valkyrie a single time without making a mess of it.'

The patriotic editor of the London Standard says: "The Vigilant's victory is a great one."

Information received from New York since the race was interviewed in his humble quarters as to the effect that a few stage coaches were brought into play at that time.

It is stated that he is doing fairly well and is far from feeling the pinch of poverty he so picturesquely described and his surroundings indicated.

Taking every thing into consideration "Prince Hal" is considered a very lucky fugitive from justice.

The pathetic story of Almon B. Thomson, the abounding cashier of the defunct Provident Savings Bank, as printed exclusively in the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH, has revived memories of one of the most villainous bank wrecks in the country. While Almon B. Thomson was the central figure in the crime there were others whose criminal carelessness and negligence in managing the affairs of the Provident Bank justified the officers of the law instituting prosecutions.

Thomson's story as told by him in the dimly-lighted and scantly furnished room of his boarding-house, as given exclusively in the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH, was pathetic in the extreme, while the presence of the faithful wife and daughter whom he had disgraced and dragged down with him to the depths of poverty and desolation made it even pitiful, but it does not exonerate him of his crime.

There are in the hands of the Sheriff of St. Louis two pairs of handcuffs.

They were sworn out against him seven years ago by Thomas H. Swain, the independent vice-president of the bank, whose son, Almon B. Thomson, had robbed and then fled to Canada.

One charges him with grand larceny and the other with embezzlement, the amount of the latter being the same, $40,000.

The first of these is as follows:

STATE OF MISSOURI, } Charged with grand larceny
Almon B. THOMSON, } and embezzlement.

Bernard Dierkes, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney of the St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction, on behalf of the State of Missouri, now here in court

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 9.—Habens corpus proceedings were instituted before Judge Street of the Knox County Criminal Court for the release of the sixteen State soldiers now confined in jail here charged with the lynching of Miner Richard Dredmond at Knoxville on the morning of Aug. 15. Ten witnesses on the side of the prosecution were examined this morning, and from the evidence so far obtained it is the opinion of all that the soldiers will be turned loose. The defense came from Capt. Jenkins, who have been held as witnesses for their comrades were brought here this morning. The soldiers are acquitted all will be paid off and dismissed. If not paid off will be released on a $10,000 bond and the others disbanded. At any rate, the many soldiers, who have been on constant duty for a year, will cease to exist.

Five soldiers of the 10th Tennessee have cost the state nearly $10,000 in pay and expenses during the last thousand dollars and the loss of many lives.

Five minutes later the Vigilant seemed to drop the spire she made ahead and the Valkyrie followed her. The wind was well to windward of the racers and no complaint could be made by either of them as the wind was strong and fresh. The two were at twelve miles an hour and freshened, with a change in the positions of the yachts. Both yachts were still on the starboard tack heading about southward.

Both yachts were still on the starboard tack heading about southward.

At 11:45 both yachts tacked. Valkyrie continued about southward and Vigilant improved her lead, leaving the Britisher half a mile behind. The Valkyrie went about once more on a starboard tack.

Both had balloon sails set at 1:15. The Vigilant was fairly flying on the dead run to leeward on the second leg, apparently increasing the gap that separated her from her rival.

The Vigilant's time on the first leg was 1h. 44m., the Valkyrie's 1h. 47m. 15s. This was doing very well, indeed, as the vessels in the tacking had to travel nearly double the length of the course of ten miles.

The second leg of the course was sailed due east. Vigilant fairly flew over the course and rounded the mark on the second leg at 2:15 o'clock, having covered one-third of the course in fifty-one minutes. The Valkyrie rounded the stake boat and began chasing the Vigilant. She turned the stake boat late. She turned the stake boat in the haze and her exact time could not be seen, but Capt. ## AN ITALIAN COUNT.

Identity of Saturday Night's Suicide Discovered.

HIS RIGHT NAME WAS JOHN BOE FOX-LORETTO.

His Romance in Italy and With Miss Weber—Strange Disappearance of Money He Was Known to Have Had—His Wonderful Feats in Translation—Friends Will Bury Him.

The mystery surrounding the name of the man who committed suicide under the assumed name of Lorito Fuchs was slightly cleared up this morning. Fuchs left a letter to his friends, telling her that he had been well off in the past, and some poetry and a fable to Miss Lou Weber, forlornly of Woodward & Tiernan's book-bindery. In the letter to the landlady of his boarding-house was a foot-note giving his regards to Deputy Coroner Rohling. Fuchs, whose real name is John Edward Fox-Loretto, was about 35 years old, and was brought to the city by the firm of Woodward & Tiernan, stationers. Two years ago the firm received a letter from Texas stating that he was in New York out of employment, and a first-class printer. The letter also stated that he was a translator and spoke seven different languages. He was offered a position in the house. He accepted it and proved to be what he had represented he was. He did the translations for the house, but never did any for himself. When necessary to set up a translation Fuchs placed the copy in one language before him and would set it in another, so that the reader could understand. Fuchs had no associates in the office and held himself alone from the men in the composing-room, with the exception of his parents, in the same "alley."

WELL IN LOVE.

It was while employed at the shop that he met Miss Weber, who is a forelady in the bindery department. For a long time Fuchs kept the fact that he was smitten with the lady to himself, but finally told two or three of the men. During the time he worked there Fuchs carried a roll of money and had a bank account. Last April he left Woodward & Tiernan's and went to an assistant editor of Le Journal Français de St. Louis. He held the position for a short time, and then went to the Standard, New Louis Printing Co. on Texas and Main avenues, which place he held at the time he committed suicide.

At the time of his death Fuchs fell in with a crowd of Germans and Austrians who were friendly to him and his interests were drawn to him. He developed a passion for gambling and was a steady loser in a small game of poker. He had a bank account and his friends were worried about him, but he had no money. About two years ago Deputy Coroner Rohling lectured Fuchs about playing poker and the paper carrier, whose 6-year-old daughter was still with him, took him to task. He was paying attention to Miss Weber. When he died Saturday and Deputy Coroner Rohling took charge of his effects it was found that he had a bank account and his friends were concerned, Deputy Rohling, not desiring to see him buried in Potter's Field, had his body embalmed and had it sent to an undertaker to embalm the body.

The morning he made a proposition to the friends of the dead man at Woodward & Tiernan's to have him buried, and, since through the kindness of Besenek, secured a coffin, and if the friends would raise $20 the remains could be given a decent burial. He and his friends were greatly willing to do this. They asked Rohling what had become of Fuchs' money, stating that he must have nearly $100.

FUCHS' SUPPOSED FORTUNE.

Miss Weber told the Coroner that Fuchs had told her that he was worth $1,000 dollars and that if anything happened to him Ed Singer would take care of him. Miss Weber construed this to mean that Singer was keeping Fuchs' money in trust for him to have it when he died. She is a widow, and her late husband was keeping her, her husband being a salesmen for the Walsleiter Lumber Co., 146 Rutgers street, and lives at 1116 Gratiot street, Detroit. But she said the child and I want to bring her up right. I can take care of her as I am doing well now and I am not far away. She must be taken away from those people."

Speaking of the fight he had a week ago with the day when King took his daughter away, Mr. King said: "I am not afraid of King. He is keeping her, the injured husband said.

"I am glad I didn't kill him. I could have done it and I would have done it when he drew his knife, but I was prevented. He was 8 or 10 feet away from me when he drew his knife, and I could have used his knife, but they wouldn't let me get the pistol out and I guess it is just as well."

King said his wife and Day took his furniture from 1915 Franklin avenue, where they formerly lived, and sold it. He said he will have them arrested for the abduction.

The police are investigating and he offered to see if Fuchs has any money in any of the banks in the city.

AN ITALIAN COUNT.

But little of Fuchs' life is known before he came to St. Louis, as he was very much isolated from his friends. To a friend in the German neighborhood he told a little of his former life, stating that his mother was German and his father an Italian, that he was by birth a count. While he was young he was betrothed to a girl of good family, but the marriage was delayed off. After that he claims he wandered from country to country, making a tour of the world, and finally landed in New York, from which point he came to St. Louis. Fuchs was a fine looking man in all his habits, and was thought very highly of by Woodward & Tiernan. In case he is not found guilty of the charge he offered to see if Fuchs has any money in any of the banks in the city.

BOGARD HELD.

Moss Answer to a Charge of Grand Larceny.

Judge Claiborne gave his decision to-day in the case against Milt O. Bogard, ex-secretary of the Western Union Building and Loan Association, in which he is charged with embezzlement. He failed to show property belongs to Patrick O'Connell, which case was heard Friday and taken under advisement. The court held Bogard on a charge of grand larceny. Fixed bail at $10,000, but Bogard consented to reduce it to $5,000. N. McFerlin, who is on Bogard's other bonds, signed the new bond. O'Connell wished to have the case dismissed, but Bogard refused to do so, and intrusted Bogard to attend to it for him. In transferring the property Catherine Price, a typewriter and amanuensis employee, Bogard was in the third party. The property was mortgaged to him, and he was to receive 10 per cent general reduction of the tariff in order and thus re-invested in the case, but it did not stick and a warrant charging Bogard with embezzlement was issued to the property was then issued.

Twenty-Two Passengers Lost.

A Sailing Vessel Wrecked and Only Six Persons Saved.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9.—Advice brought by the steamer Rio de Janeiro state that the sailing vessel Sinjo Maru was wrecked off the coast of Japan on the 4th inst. Twenty-two of the twenty-eight passengers were drowned.

Salvation Army Daily's Case.

A jury was selected in the Criminal Court to-day to try John Daily, alias "salvation Army" Daily, who killed his wife, Elizabeth Daily, May 11 last on Chouteau avenue. Daily, a carpenter, was indicted for manslaughter, having been found guilty of killing his wife in the course of an argument.

Nine Years in the Penitentiary.

John Newcomb, 20, was sentenced to nine years in the penitentiary for highway robbery in the Criminal Court for highway robbery.

WAR IN MOROCCO.

Spain Will Attempt to Drive the Troops From the Sultanate.

MOSCOW, Oct. 4.—The Spanish Government is sending supplies to Melilla and the provinces of Ceuta, the town is cheerfully regarded by the people, who applaud each detachment of soldiers that leaves the depots. Dispatches from Melilla say that the rebels continue to keep up a desultory fire on the Spanish fort. The Cabyles, outside and near Melilla, continue to erect extensive earthworks, and to dig out a system of fortifications to drive them away. They are receiving re-enforcements every moment.

Melilla is a convict settlement of the Spanish Empire. The town is built on a promontory overlooking the Mediterranean. It has a population of about 20,000. The Spanish government's intervention is still rooted in the breasts of Spaniards that the long war against the Moors can only be conducted by the Moors themselves.

In Spain the extraordinary mineral and agricultural capabilities of Morocco are appreciated.

The Spanish forces have also a claim on the historic little country.

Within three hours of Gibraltar the representatives of the Spanish country in Europe, London, Paris, and many others, crowded up within the walls of Tangiers, the capital of Morocco, just outside. Behind them lies a vast and almost entirely cut off. In Tangiers itself for nearly forty years the foreign representatives have been closely engaged in little else than a bitter fight.

It is extremely probable that this Melilla affair is the beginning of the aggressive movement of the Moors.

Several British interests in Tangiers are seeking and would be benefited by Morocco's disruption, while the British are seeking and would be benefited by the Moors' disruption.

When he died Saturday and Deputy Coroner Rohling took charge of his effects it was found that he had a bank account and his friends were concerned.

WELL IN LOVE.

It was while employed at the shop that he met Miss Weber, who is a forelady in the bindery department.

For a long time Fuchs was with the firm of Woodward & Tiernan, stationers.

Two years ago the firm received a letter from Texas stating that he was in New York out of employment, and a first-class printer. The letter also stated that he was a translator and spoke seven different languages. He was offered a position in the house. He accepted it and proved to be what he had represented he was.

He did the translations for the house, but never did any for himself.

When necessary to set up a translation Fuchs placed the copy in one language before him and would set it in another, so that the reader could understand.

He was paying attention to Miss Weber.

AMUSEMENTS TO-NIGHT.

Olympic—John Drew.
Grand Opera-House—Belland Reed.
Harcourt—“The Strange Life.”
Mayhew—“Milton Nobles.”
Standard—Fields & Hanson.
Matines—Fields & Hanson.
Standard—Fields & Hanson.Weather forecast until Tuesday evening:
For Missouri—Fair; cooler to-night; warmer Tuesday; Southward. Close weather prevails throughout the entire country this morning, except in the valley of the Red River of the North and the extreme Northwest.It is cooler in the Upper Missouri Valley and nearly stationary temperature elsewhere.
St. Louis forecast: Fair Monday and Tuesday; cool Tuesday evening.WILL Muley Hassan show the Spaniards his heels?Was the gambling legislation of Missouri designed for the special benefit of Pool Alley?UNDER the operation of the statutes horse-racing in Missouri has become a mere adjunct to Pool Alley.THERE is no doubt now as to the complete civilization of the Choctaws. They have developed a defaulting Treasurer.If Chicago doesn't wish to be considered woolly she should take care not to send Aldermen on delicate missions.If the Democrats of Iowa can't succeed in their merit this year they ought to win on the demerits of the other fellows.SETTLEMENT, not compromise, is the watchword of the repealers. And repeal is the first step toward honest bimetallism.THE Philadelphia papers are almost unanimous in favor of Van Alen's confirmation. John Wanamaker lives in Philadelphia.THE gambling laws of this State have not suppressed gambling but have merely concentrated its energies and influences in Pool Alley and on the race tracks.In the voters of St. Louis permit the School Board nominations to go by default; they will have only themselves to blame if we have continued mismanagement.CHOLERA seems to have gotten a fresh trip in Europe, and the labors of the New York quarantine officers are arduous as ever. Cleanliness is as necessary as ever.PATIENTS whose children are suffering from the incompetence of the School Board have a direct personal interest in the nomination and election of new members.THE injury done Missouri's lead interest by the Government's protection of silver is not remarkable. In all cases protection works a wrong. It enables one class to enrich itself at the expense of another.It appears that M. Constant, who wants to be President himself, spreads reports that President Carnot's liver is in a serious condition. It is plain that the statesmen of the Third Republic are fully up to the requirements of politics.MR. GEORGE GOULD can express the conventional plutoocratic opinion with great fluency, and now and then he says something not wholly conventional. But his mind is in bondage to his wealth and he shows no desire for freedom.THE Massachusetts Republican platform calls for a tax upon legacies and successions, both direct and collateral. This looks like business. It is refreshing to see a Republican convention taking an interest in the revenue. There should be taxes other than tariff taxes.His stenographer thinks Mr. Van Alen a Democrat because he pays his bills, a gentleman because he treated his servant kindly, and a scholar because he "suspected refreshments." This is a shorthand expression of the upper 400 ideas on qualifications for high office.MR. GEORGE GOULD says he pays as much personal taxes as both heads of the two older branches of the Vanderbilt family together. It is really prudent in Mr. Gould, with the reputation of a finan-cial giant to keep up, to admit that as a tax dodger he is not in it with the Vanderbilts!THE latest estimate of the cost of deporting Chinese under the Geary law seems to conclude all expectation that that absurd and dangerous enactment will be enforced.
The law has done nothing but inspire the Chinese Government with ill will toward us and furnish a few demagogues with cheap thunder.It isn't pleasant to have St. Louis clasped with New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago as a great Babylon, with corruption, despair and restlessness prevailing here as they do in those cities. Why can't we make a new departure when the roof goes on the new City Hall? We can all vote. We know just what to do. There should be no Babylons in the great West.

FOLLOWING THE WRONG LEADER.

The longer bimetallists follow the lead of silver monometallists the longer will they have to wait for recognition and allowance of their claims.Bimetallism is very strong in this country. It has an overwhelming majority of the people and nearly every public man whose opinion is worth quoting is committed to it. The cause can be won if it is properly managed by its friends, but it is almost sure to be lost if handed over to those whose every effort is exerted in another direction.It is admitted by all that those who profit by it that the Sherman law is a vicious enactment, which ought never to have been passed. It did not receive a single Democratic vote in either House. It was denounced at the time as an obstacle to a political settlement of the question and is admitted to be only a makeshift by those who concocted it.And yet Democratic bimetallists like Senators Cockrell and Vest are fighting the repeal of a law whose enactments they opposed. They confess that it is bad; but it is hurting the business interests of the country; that it was a step in the wrong direction, and yet they weekly play into the hands of silver monometallists for "strategic reasons."The admission that the law is bad ought to be conclusive. It ought to be repealed for this reason, if for no other. But from a bimetallic point of view it should be wiped out because a readjustment of ratio and free coinage is impossible as long as it blocks the way. The most that can be done is to get out of the present fight, if successful, is a compromise, which will further delay a settlement and perhaps plunge us in still further difficulties.The only safe programme is straightforward, honest action on the Wilson bill. When repeat is accomplished bimetallists will have a clear field in which to pursue their labors.

AFTER THE BALL.

The time has arrived when the base ball player can rest his mind. The season is over, and a long winter of leisure is before him. It is, perhaps, to be regretted that the inclemency of the weather robs the public of so much of the usefulness of the ball athlete. While he is missed by the people his long period of inactivity tends to unfit him for the noble game, which really requires eternal vigilance, like lib-

MORNING CROWDS.

They Visit the Exposition to Study the Exhibits.

THE ATTENDANCE IS FAR GREATER THAN MOST PEOPLE SUSPECT.

The Pickerel Does Not Destroy Smaller Fish as is Generally Imagined—Lack of Originality in National Arts—Sig. Galassi and Miss Alice Raymond This Week—Epworth League Day.

Those who believe that the music is the only attraction that draws a very great majority of those who attend the Exposition should visit the building in the morning. Anyone who is not in the habit of making an early call will be astonished at the number of people who have been removed from some of the exhibits. It is probable that as much, if not more, real study is done during the morning hours than during the afternoon and evening. The absence of the crush is of great advantage to those wishing to make a really critical examination of the exhibits. The Art Gallery always contains a large number of students who are examining the pictures most carefully. In the Machinery Department mechanics, who have evidently taken a day off for the purpose of making study of what interests them, are seen at every turn. There is little strolling about, for nearly all who come have some particular object in view, but there is a great deal of hard study going on every morning.

THE WEEK'S AMUSEMENTS.

Comedy and Melodrama the Features at the Theaters.

Last night Robert Mantell appeared at the Olympic Theater in "Monarchs." To-night Mr. John Drew opens a week's engagement at "The Masked Ball." "This man," says Mr. Levy, "is indeed met with an enthusiastic reception; it is excellently written and full of most amusing situations. As to the manner in which it is handled, I am sure that the leading part is to be taken by John Drew sufficient to all theater-goers. The males of a certain family are the chief characters to be born with the initials 'M. C.' standing for member of Congress, tattooed upon them. The drama is strong and well written, being a piece of comedy which would amount to a certificate of his tronic ability, and John Drew is by no means the least of them. He will be supported by the new stars of the stage, among them. Among the tickets stolen was the annual pass belonging to Mr. James Thomason of Sedalia, Mo., a director of the M. K. & T.

A gentleman who has taken a great deal of interest in fishing, while standing in front of the exhibits of the Missouri Fish Commission said: "I have pulled a great many fish out of the water, and thought that I knew a good deal about their habits, but what I have seen here to-day has spoiled my beliefs. I am in company with many fishermen, and we have had a hatful of pickers. I believed that he was a mortal enemy of all fish, but that is not the case, and carried on a relentless warfare against them. He bears the reputation of being the greatest fresh water pirate the swells. But he is not the only one, others are making no attempt to attack them; I cannot understand it. I do know that in lakes where salmon abound there are no bears, and in some lakes, as for instance, Lake in North Dakota, no other fish are found. Now the Missouri Fish Commission has made such a noise, that every family passes my Great interest is felt by lovers of popular music in the "salute of Nations," which sous begins to day. It intends giving the national and patriotic tunes of all nations, and will doubtless cause large crowds to assemble at street corners and in public places. "Two things have struck me about national airs. One is how few are original, and the other is how few are unoriginal. The meanest fiddle can't arise without a war, and apply to no conditions except those existing at the time. It is well known that the "Crown Imperial" is not so well known than the latter is a copy of an old student song. "The White Knight" and "Old Dussauer" can be recognized. "Maryland, My Maryland," is nothing but "Lambeth" with a slight change. "Star Spangled Banner" had only a local application. "Providence" is an apt name, and it has more universal and continuing significance than "Hall Columbia."

To-day is Epworth League day and the Methodists turned out in full force. The Epworth League corresponds closely to the Society of Friends, and has a very large membership, especially among Sunday-school children, although it is by no means entirely confined to that class. The members are scattered in every part of the day to a fine one. Sig. Galassi, the well-known baritone, will make his appearance at the meeting. The famous lady cornetists will play a variety of selections. They will be the special soloists for this week. The members of the Epworth League began to arrive an hour and a half earlier than usual, and a very large attendance is assured.

The following is the musical programme for this evening:

CONCERT—7 TO 8.

1. Overture—"Tancrède!"..... Rosolini
2. Ballet music—"Coppelia"..... Deibulus
3. Song—"The Lost Chord"..... Sullivan
4. Corset solo—"The Wolf"..... Damer
5. March—"The Epworth League"..... Sousa

6. Overture—"Tu si Misches!"..... Pedroso
7. Cavalier Rusticane"..... Massagno
8. Air de ballet—"Danseuse"..... Hoffman
9. Baritone solo—"I'm a Man"..... Rauol
10. Sig. Anna Galassi

"Salute of the Nations" to the St. Louis Exposition.

The band, grand chorus, drums and sile cords, bagpipes, mandolin club, British Guard and grand tableau of "Columbia Triumphant."

REFUSED $2,500 A FOOT.

BIG OFFER FOR FIFTEEN AND OLIVE STREETS

Corner—Real Estate News.

This morning E. E. Harding, who owns 50x109 feet, at the southeast corner of Fifteenth and Olive streets, is said to have refused an offer of $2,500 a foot for his property. There are some building improvements on the corner which are in a fair condition, and the property is said to be in a good location. The parties who made the offer would be willing to give the same price if the grounds were cleared.

DISCONTINUING SUMMER EXCURSION TRAIN.

After Sunday, Oct. 8, the excursion train on the Burlington route between St. Louis and Quincy will be discontinued. Train No. 17, leaving St. Louis at 4:40 a.m., and No. 18, leaving Hannibal at 3 p.m., will run daily between these points.

CARGO MISSING.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Oct. 9.—A peculiar case of a lost cargo is now being investigated. Last August Alden & Co. of New York chartered the ship Cadagua to convey a cargo of machinery and 400,000 gallons of crude petroleum to Valencia, Spain. The vessel arrived in sight of land on Sept. 1, and was delivered to a man named Ayora, who represented himself as the proper party. Alden & Co. sent agents in search of the cargo, and no trace of the goods, nor of the cargo or Ayora can be found. The Cadagua is now in the Delaware River, and the cargo is said to be sold to pay Alden & Co. their claim.

TAKEN FROM HIS CAR.

A PRINCIPAL CONDUCTOR ROBBED OF $700 WORTH OF RAILROAD TICKETS.

The conductor of the sleeping car "Utah," attached to the north-bound passenger train of the M. K. & T., due at Moberry, Mo., at midnight, was robbed of forty-five tickets Saturday night shortly after the train arrived at Moberry. The train was in charge of Conductor Dan Temple of Sedalia, and reached Moberry on time when it waited twenty minutes for connections.

The sleeping car conductor was sitting in his car, reading the Chicago business when Moberry was reached. He had just put on his cap and was about to go to the conductor of the C. B. & Q., who takes the train to Chicago, when the return tickets were restored to the sleeping car. These are the tickets that were stolen and which will not be sold to Chicago ticket offices, as they are to be used on the road to prompt action in the premises.

The passengers on the "Utah" were not approached by the thief until they reached Moberry, when some of the male passengers of the Katy and the C. B. & Q., who had been new to the car, were asked if the tickets were soon assayed by officials of the Katy and the C. B. & Q., who were restoring the tickets.

The conductor of the sleeping car, who was a member of the Epworth League, was arrested on a robbery charge, and he was carried on a relays to Sedalia, Mo., where he was arrested on a robbery charge, and he was

C., Oct. 9. Mr. Aldrich, the Republican Representative from Rhode Island, opened the debate on the election bill in the House this morning with a defense of the Republican "attempt to check the Democratic frauds" in that great city and put down the "Cartel Harrison ring."Mr. Dohler of Iowa followed in the same strain. The repeal of the election laws, he said, places the Government in the attitude of disowning the men who defended its life and of leaving them without civil rights except by the grace of God. He then turned to destroy their right of suffrage. He then made a vigorous attack on Tammany, an organization which, he said, lived up to the name it deserved, "vice, misfortunes and contracts of our great American city."Mr. Boutelle of Maine, after delivering a powerful speech from New England, in which he made some sarcastic allusions to Dr. Everett of Massachusetts and was roundly cheered, said: "I am James Russell Lowell, which, he said, described the dough-face of 1861, enabled him to throw his hat into the ring." The House was listening eagerly. Suddenly Mr. Springer took exception against applying the epithet "dough face" to the speaker."It is an epithet," returned Mr. Boutelle, "which can be applied with equal force as well to the great men from Illinois as to the great men from Maine."The House held its breath. Mr. Springer's face grew white with rage."I do not care to say that you apply that epithet to me," he shouted."You understand it as well as you are capable of understanding anything," retorted Boutelle."I want you to know, sir," replied Mr. Springer, striding toward his adversary with fire in his eyes, "that you dare not apply such an epithet to me.""Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Illinois cannot be impudent to me in this way.""I do not care to return," returned Mr. Boutelle."But I withdraw the epithet," he said, as he continued moving his arms maniacally around the floor in his direction."In order that I may go on with my speech, I deny, however, that it was unparliamentary."*The attempt to sustain the speaker was as futile as was the attempt in the last Congress to take exception to the word, "mungump."*Mr. Springer was evidently far from being satisfied with the bout, but he seated himself, and Mr. Boutelle read the extract from Lowell.*AROUSED TO TALK.*Senators Walcott and Voorhees Batt Each Other in the Senate.*WASHINGTON, D. Motor car No. 119 of the Northern Central line, in charge of Dennis Mahoney, was going north on Sixth street, and crossing the Washington avenue blue line. The force of the collision was so great that the Northern Central car was thrown off the track and carried a distance twelve feet. Both cars were filled with passengers, and the collision was so violent that two cars collided and dashed wildly off the street. Bob Hudson, a negro, was shot while trying to protect his wife from ten masked white men who went to his house at night and whipped her severely. The woman had given offense by having a white man (Hudson) arrested and fined for assault and battery. When the masked men reached Hudson he called Mr. Harris, the white man on whose farm he had been working. Mr. Harris had opened fire on Hudson and in the fight Hudson was killed. Mr. Harris has had Tom Parsons, a cousin, to the man who was killed.*Mr. Boutelle's Attack on Dr. Everett of Massachusetts.*REPRESENTATIVE SPRINGER MIXES IN WITH SAD RESULTS.*The love of brass buttons and gold strips and "soldier boy" effects is a part of every soul. The boy's costume shown in the cut will be almost as welcome to a little chap as his first trousers were. It is military in effect and should be in dark blue or green with braiding of black.*A charming costume for a fair-haired little girl is of frost-blue bengaline. The skirt is particularly wide and full, and the trim consists of lights of the silk. The waist is pointed slightly back and front, and has a girdle effect. The blouse is of the silk. The yoke and cuffs are of heavy velvet, and are edged with jeweled gimp. The sleeves are very full, and wide bracelets of the silk go over the shoulders.*Another quaint little couple is velvet and crepe.*The dainty gentleman is represented in dark Russian blue velvet. The jacket turns back in straight lapels, with imitation buttons and a belt. The waist is cambric waist, with its dainty ruffles. The jacket is "standing up before," la Old Grimes, with pearl button buttons.*The little lady is bewitching in a plaited pink of pink crepe, hanging straight from the neck. A ribbon belt is brought loosely around the waist and lifted slightly in a point in front. The blouse is of the same piece, plaited closely in at the shoulder and finished like the neck with a wide frill of lace.*A Gray Felt.*This hat is of gray felt, with a border of gray and pink shaded feather trimming. Strange Story Told of the Drowning of Dr. Charles Theodore Gray. BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 9.—The remarkable story told to account for the death of Dr. Charles Theodore Gray of this city, who lost his life at East Wareham, Mass., Saturday night, does not satisfy his friends in this city, and they believe that he was murdered. The matter will be fully investigated. The story telegraphed last night is that Dr. Gray, in company with Miss Gussie White, the daughter of a prominent family in New York, arrived at East Wareham two weeks ago. The object of their visit was to investigate the disappearance of the well-known medium, Mrs. Bliss. The Doctor and Miss White had rooms. It is said, in a letter shown to the reporter, that the girl went to the beach and put on in a small boat. She says she reached the shore of the drowning and was unable to pull herself ashore. In the boat, but their combined weight overturned the craft and she sank, while she clung to the boat until rescued by men who were at the beach by the screens. Subsequently the Doctor's body was dragged out of the water. But as it was fully clothed he could not have gone into the water alive. There was a cut on the head, but no other signs of violence.

Not Privileged to Eat His Wife.

While Smith is a denizen of the Eighth street yard who does not respect woman's rights. Last even his wife remarked that she was tired, which so agitated the dusky Willis that he knocked her down and chastised her. When Judge Harmon asked him what he meant by Willis replied: "It's none of your business. I guess I had a right to."

"How is it that you are privileged to throw her?"

"Well, down I make her a living, an ain't I got'er right to correct her when she doan talk them ways? What is it?"

He admitted that there was behind the century, and tendered a fine of $25.

Death of Gen. Von Versen.

A telegram was received yesterday by Gov. D. M. Frost announcing the death of Gen. Maximilian Von Versen in Berlin in the morning. Gen. Von Versen was well known in St. Louis, having married Miss Alice Clemens, a daughter of the late James Clemens, Jr., whose army record is a most creditable one, and his gallant services were duly appreciated by Emperor William I.

The news of Gen. Von Versen's death was a surprise to all his friends here as he was in good health only a few days ago, when his daughter married Lieut. Von Armin.

Took Off Ten Trains.

The Broadway street railway line, commencing this morning, changed their schedules by taking off ten trains. Heretofore it has been the custom to run trains before 9 o'clock, 8 a. m., at intervals of one and one-half hours, and after 9 o'clock, at intervals of two minutes. The time will hereafter be intervals of two and three minutes respectively. Lack of patronage is said to be the cause of the change. A corresponding reduction has been made in the working force by the discharge of some twenty-five employees.

—fresh air and proper food, help to keep a woman in good condition. It's insinuous for some, weak as they are by the ailments and irregularities peculiar to their sex, to help them along, though; there's easily done.

A remedy in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—that will build up and cure every enfeebled woman. It's the prescription of a physician who has cured in thousands of cases and never found wanting.

The only risk that's taken is that of the manufacturers who promise to refund the money if no benefit is experienced.

This "Prescription" reaches the origin of the trouble. It cures spinal and nervous disorders, such as sleeplessness, chorea or St. Vitus' dance, depend upon the irregularities and dislocations of the special structures—the "Favorite Prescription" cures by regulating and correcting these functions and organs changes.

The unexpected wind-up of the Fair Grounds meeting Saturday came like a thunder-clap out of a clear sky to the small army of owners running at the track and many are caught in almost destitute circumstances. It was understood that the meeting would be extended until the end of this month and Mr. Frank Shaw himself, so late as Friday evening, announced he had made a proposition to have the meeting continued a few weeks longer, which he was convinced would be accepted. Most of the better class of owners were making preparations yesterday to leave the city with their strings as soon as possible. Capt. Billy Williamson concluded to go to Louisville and take in the fall meeting at Churchill Downs, which will be inaugurated this afternoon. His string, including Prince Kinney, Winfield and Falstaff, will be shipped this evening. The Louisville meeting is over the Captain will attend the next day.

A physician, in an essay on "Muscle-Building as Illustrated by the Modern Samson," says: "The most remarkable thing about American sportsmen is that they squared the circle and entered a counting-room only to die of consumption—to die within a short time after a large number of large jumps without an accustomed exercise were a misfit in a sedentary occupation." The physician referred to is probably John Dwyer, who was a champion boxer, defeating Jim Elliott. Dwyer went into the surgeon's office in Brooklyn and died the same day. The physician's theory is that the doctor's theory may be correct. It was claimed by the friends of Dwyer that his disease was due to the terrible right-hander of Elliott, who beat him up. Then Dwyer caught a severe cold at the time of the fight. The belief is that violent exercise shortens life is held by many athletes as well as physicians.

The Man Killed by an O. & M. Train Still Unidentified—Axe. Chenot's Marriage.

Coroner Campbell held an inquest at Kur-rus' Morgue to-day on the body of an unknown man who was killed by a train on the O. & M. road, north of East St. Louis. The body was that of an ordinary laborer, probably about 30 years old. It was decapitated. The Coroner found a scrap of paper in the clothing bearing the name Max Chapman. In Illinois, adding that there was nothing else about the body by which it might be identified.

The body was arrived at the police station by Officer Hufford held at the police station on suspicion of being deserters from the army. They were sent to the morgue.

Frank Stow, a railroad clerk who came here from Illinois, was found dead in a locomotive in the bridge yard last night. His right arm was broken, and he also sustained severe internal injuries. Dr. Paul, of St. Louis, was called to examine him.

Charles Flynn of 37 Popes Avenue, St. Louis, was here to-day looking for Wm. Whetzer, a bartender, Coroner's office, who was missing. Whetzer described Whetzer as being 47 years old, 5 feet 7½ inches tall, weighing 175 pounds and having dark hair and mustache.

The extension of the electric street rail line, which will be completed in a few days, will be a new race track in the bridge yard, and will be located near the bridge.

Frances Farnsworth, 18, of 10th and Locust, was pronounced dead at 10 o'clock this morning.

The funeral of Mrs. Ann Hennessy, who died Saturday at the age of 80 years, took place yesterday.
